Description

Reported in morpho-feedback-20040122.doc in /doc/devs/ by Andrea Chadden

1. After the new Datapackage is named by the user, the data package window banner should show the selected name, not the string "Data Package: new".
My comments: I agree. Can be changed once agreed upon by everyone.

2. (Throughout the User Interface): Which is correct: Datapackage or Data Package? Pick one and use it consistently.
My comments: I agree. Can be changed once agreed upon by everyone.

3. Main Screen: At top of screen, under "File" menu, selections are not left-justified.
My comments: I agree. Can be changed once agreed upon by everyone.

4. Perhaps the 'Help' feature should be renamed 'User Guide'(as it is called elsewhere), as this sounds more useful than the type of (mostly useless) Help features found on many Microsoft applications.
My comments: I agree for two reason: to be consistent and User Guide sounds better than the type of (mostly useless) Help. Can be changed once agreed upon by everyone.

History

#1 - 04/13/2004 10:25 AM - Dan Higgins

Items 1, 2, and 4 are taken care of.

3 can be handled by adding an 'invisible' icon of the proper size to all menu items that do not have an icon (causing the text to line up properly).

Parts 1, 2, and 3 of this bug have been fixed in 1.5.1, however, the Morpho User Guide is still called "Morpho Help" under the Help menu.

#3 - 12/14/2004 02:19 PM - Saurabh Garg

Fixed part 4.
