Description

Since the define access dialog takes so long to come up (since it's doing an ldap query) it should have a progress bar or something to show the user that morpho isn't hung. it should also have a cancel button so if it's taking too long you can kill it.

And while you're at it, the dialog with the progress bar might as well tell the user what it's doing, such as "Retrieving list of users from the network..."
