Description

1. When I do a search for "User Guide" using the Search feature within Morpho help, pages from the old version of the user guide come up in the search results (i.e. older files in CVS that have been updated). Only the most current pages of the user guide should show up in the search.

2. When searching in Morpho Help, a few things are unclear about the search results. It is unclear what the numbering in the search results is for (there is a 10, 3, 2, 5, 1 to the left of the search results). Also, there's no explanation of the red ball symbology that appears to the left of the search results.

3. In the search feature within Morpho Help, when I type in "user guide" (or user+guide), results appear that highlight only the word "user", when I only want pages where the entire phrase "user guide" appears.

4. In the search feature within Morpho Help, almost all of the names of the results are non-descript, and simply called "Knowledge Network for Biocomplexity". When there are 15 results with the same name it is frustrating to have to click on each one until you find what you want, therefore the names of the search results should be more descriptive.

5. In Morpho Help, after searching for a word or phrase (like "user guide"), the words remain highlighted on certain page(s) in the user guide (long after the search took place). There is no evident way (such as clicking on the highlighted area) to deselect the phrase or word on a page.

History

#1 - 12/17/2004 03:22 PM - Andrea Andrea

Item 1 here will be worked on by Veronique under Sid's tutelage.

#2 - 01/04/2005 12:01 PM - Veronique Connolly

I fixed Item 1.

#3 - 01/05/2005 01:44 PM - Veronique Connolly

Regarding Item 1: I deleted the old files (old version of user guide) from the Morpho jar file, but the files are still in the morpho_cvs\docs\user directory.
