Description

This is an enhancement rather than a bug. When morpho loads an existing metadata file it loads the data tables too. We have packages with 60-150mb in the data tables, and even switching views is maddenly slow - in fact slow enough that I use some other editor. However, if there was an option to load only the metadata and not the data table, morpho wouldnt have to work so hard, and we could still take advantage of its other useful features. Most editing involves only the metadata file anyway... Thanks!
