Description

provide visual indication of default button/choice on windows/dialog boxes

History done for main screen (ie search buttons). Will do on new dialogs as they are developed

I would think that in most of the regular dialogs the "ok" button or equivalent would be the "default." There could be special instances where this is not the case but the default indicated is also to make it easy for people to just hit "enter" to execute the dialog etc.

too general. will address in each dialog box, and any bugs can then be targeted specifically at occurrences
