Description

The state and county search pull-down menus revert to North Carolina, Alamance, almost immediately after clicking the "get" button. We find this confusing.

Steve Seiberling reports:
The search page sometimes continues to be displayed for several moments after entering a geographic search (perhaps due to slow network connections). The user then sees the geographic selection revert to North Carolina, Alamance, as if one's choice is being ignored. It's this case that we found confusing.
One solution would be to continue to display the state and county selected by the user, until the user makes a new selection.
