Description
Many of the workflows in this directory are broken, and although they are useful as examples, we do not want to include broken code with the release. If developers want to use or look at these workflows, they can always get them from the nightly build or cvs.

I created two clean targets in the build script so that you can either clean the directory for a windows or a mac installer. These both use the installercleanup target as a base which removes the workflows directory before building the installer. other directories could be added here in the future if we want to clean up more.
