Description

If you scroll down to a subsequent part of a multi-part question, it is easy to lose where the edit button is, since it only is displayed at the top of the question.

We need to somehow make it easier to put the question in edit mode when an error is noticed. I'm in favor of doing so when a mouse click occurs. Right now the text can be highlighted, but nothing can be done with it unless you're actually in edit mode.
