Description

When a data package is added to the data cart and user chooses to edit the metadata fields that get displayed in the downloaded .csv file, a user does not have an option to discard all or a few of the fields already selected. In fact, once a few fields are selected and the "save selection" option is selected, the user has to select at least one field in order to change the selection any further.

Click the "X" next to the metadata field to remove it from the list.
