Description

I created a package (.1 revision), synced local->remote (.2 revision?), then edited the local EML to produce a docid conflict (another .2 revision). When trying to sync local->remote, a message pops up about a docid conflict and asks how I want to resolve this. There's a radio selector but no "Ok" button or anything like that. The only option is to close the dialog window with the X in the upper right corner, which isn't exactly intuitive. It seems to function properly, though.

should be addressed for the 1.8 release.

Add Ok button to replace closing the dialog. I tested the change and it seems working to me
