Description
Some characters cause the account creation process to fail out, and return a blank page to the user instead of the expected error. Noticed by Jim while assisting some folks to get set up with Morpho, on the production site at: http://knb.ecoinformatics.org/knb/cgi-bin/ldapweb.cgi?cfg=knb

Jim -- do you remember which characters?

#3 - 04/08/2013 02:05 PM - Nick Brand

Resetting passwords fails silently, leaving users without a way to login.

Until it's fixed there should be a warning not to use the characters which don't work.

Jing - would be great if we can check for some special characters and fail gracefully if their password uses ones that cannot be saved in LDAP.

While we do allow someone to create an account with special characters as the password, I am unable to login using the password. Tested with password: □□□□

Perhaps we can just give people guidelines about using simple ASCII passwords?

#7 - 10/02/2013 10:58 AM - Jing Tao

I agree to add guidelines for users.
