THere are plotting classes in runtimemonitor and sensor-view, it seems to me they should all be in one place, sensor-view.

I discussed this w/ Dan and spent time looking through the code, and have changed my mind. We want plotting accesible to other developers, so leaving it separate from sensor-view is probably better. Since a lot of the code isn't robust enough to move into gui, there's a dependency on provenance, and we're short of time, I guess leaving the module alone for now is ok.
